Is probably unapproached by any other apparatus—saving the Pardon Machine of President Johnson, which made a very creditable display of its powers in this line in Washington a few months since—has been set up in and about the City Hall, and is now in active and highly sneessful operation. The dlack and whirt of the machinery resounds loudly from Tammany Hall, and Judge Gardsso's court-room, where the heavy part of the work is done, and where the operatives and their superintendents are the braisest and sweatest and grimlest. An ALLEGED DEALER IN "QUEER."

United States agt. John Foster.

The following testimony explains the case:
Anton McCarty—Know prisoner, known him over a year;
saw him in September, 1965, at the Carson House, in Crosby st.;
had business with him; bought some 60-cord counterfeit our roncy notes from him; was at that time an essistant of one of the officers of the Secret Service of the Treasury Department, and think I bought about twenty stamps from the prisoner; paid 40 or 45 cents on the dollar for them in good money; think all the package now shown me are the bills I bought of him; know three or four are, for I marked them; the currency I bought was all alike; I am still in the service of the Secret Service Deparsment.

Cross-examined—Gave the currency to Mr. Lowel; he was in the Secret Service Department; don't know where he is now; has saw him in last August; never saw the bills since I gave them to Lowell till now; Lowell was present when I marked the money.

ADOFTED PARENTS—A FAMILY TROUBLE.

In re. Detia Ricity, an infant, &c.

The child's mother died almost as soon as it was born, and the father placed it in charge of the respondents, Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly. When the child reached the age of five, its father also died, leaving an estate of some $500 to 600. The brother of the deceased was appointed administrator, and guardian of the child without contest, but subsequently an attempt was made to remove him, which resulted in his favor. He now was made to remove him, which resulted in his favor. He now applies for the possession of the child. It appeared that the parties were about equal in worldly circumstances, and the Judge therefore inquired of the child who its father and methor were, when it at once pointed at Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly and ignored utterly its uncle. The Court therefore remanded it to their care.

nored utterly its uncle. The Court therefore remanded it to their care.

A MARRIED SOLDIER AND HIB WIFE.

In re Keenan—An application was made by Mrs. Keenan for the discharge of her husband, an enlisted soldier, on the ground that he was married when enlisted. The Judge thought this a case rather for the War Department than the Court, but on the production of an affidavit of Keenan's, that he did not desire his discharge, at once dismissed the petition.

Railroad Statious, the members of said Bureau to be paid a liberal salary. Which was referred to a special committee of live.

Mr. A. Welsh, Chairman of the Committee on Signals and Safety Regulations, made a report, in which he recommended the use of safety signals on all the railroads. He stated that it was the practice now to use danger signals which were very unsafe. When the danger signal did not appear, the engineer would take it for granted that everything was all right. He recommended that there should be no danger signals used, but that, in case the safety signal was not seen, the engineer would take it for granted that there was danger, and would therefore be compelled to stop. He thought it was much better to spead money in caution than to pay danages for accidents.

Gen. D. C. McCallum, chairman of Committee for Preserving Timber, reported that he had examined several plans for the preservation of timber, and would recommend that a committee be appointed to witness the experiments of various plans for seconaplishing this end, and that they report to the Convention. Several communications were received from inventors explaining the merits of their various patents, which were referred to the Committee on Patents.
